Mrs. Gladstane closed her engagement Saturday night to a fair house. For the manager's sake it is to be regretted that the play-going public do not appreciate, as they should, the legitimate; but it is commendable in him to keep up the standard as far as lies in his power. If the legitimate is not sustained, it will not be the fault of Mr. Bates; the failure will be due entirely to the demoralized taste of the day.

TERRIBLE FIGHT.

Brothers and Brothers' Wives.

Saturday night about 7 o'clock one of the most desperately contested fights ever recorded began about Eighth and Main streets, between Daniel and James Clark, brothers. They fought for over half an hour, all the way from Eighth to Ninth the street of the stre streets. This fight resulted in Daniel's losing the flesh from all the fingers of his right hand, torn off by Jim's teeth. Separating at Ninth street, each went home. Served Him Right.

On the first instant Mr. Le Bosquet, one of the conductors on the short-line railroad, had occasion to put a man off his train soon after leaving walls every Sabbath, and only a Sunday school had been continued through the untiring exertions of a few faithful ones. The assemblage of Sabbath afternoon was to revive the interest in the work and give substantial aid to the faithful few.

The exercises were opened by the reading of a sent the train was stopped, and, although the man had to be put off by force, care was taken that he might not be hurt. Person who ken that he might not be hurt. Persons who were passengers on the train testify that he sustained no injury from being forced from the train or from falling. If he was crippled he must have received his injuries after this and in some other prayer from Rev. Cyrus Young. of Baltimore vs. the Bank of the Valley, in Virginia. There was a slim attendance of bidders—not more than half a dozen, all told. The first lot offered was Confederate Government bonds of various denominations and dates, amounting to $2,269,709.

"Now, gentlemen, give me your attentioe," said Mr. Nicolay. "I am going to sell you millions of dollars, worth of securities cheon. Every man here now has a chance to get rich with a small amount of money. No foreign with a small amount of money. No. 1 on list is $2,259,509 in bonds issued by the C federate Government (so called). How man I offered for the loi? They are beautiful subellished with the portraits of Jeff, Davis Stonewall Jackson, and other great lights of the Confederacy. How much shall I have for the lot? (No response). Come, gentlemen make us an offer; don't be b. shinl; give us bid; two millions of doilars, you know—splendid change to get rich, what do you wanted splendid chance to get rich—what do you Make us an offer. (No response), y gentlemen, I am surprised. Where's Bull? where's Laird? where's Rechuck? there nobody to bid anything for two million dollars of Confederate bonds? Where's Bar-num? where's Wood? Will no one give us a bid? (No response). Why, gentlemen, I will sell them for waste paper by the pound if you don't want them for anything else; they're a good thing to have in the house, I assure you, gentlemen—good to light eigars with and for other parposes. Come, gentlemen, don't be modest; give us a bid of some sort or other.

A Voice—Fifty cents.
Mr. Nicolay—Thank vou, sir. Fifty cents I am offered; only fifty cents, gentlemen, for two million dollars' worth of securities. Shall

THE GREASE-SKIMMERS.

A Battle in the Beargrass Valley. Never perhaps since the days of the famous "Battle of the Kegs" have more tragi-comical events occurred than have been witnessed within the last three or four days in the valley of the "classic Beargrass." The immediate locality was in the vicinity of Duncan, Floyd & Co.'s pork-

Since the pork season set in numberless parties, by leases, by squatters' claims and various other methods, have divided the creek from Hamilton's pork-house, on the south fork, all the way around to Fred. Leib's, on the "old channel," into short levels, as if for slack-water navigation, each party building a dam at the lower end of his or her claim, for it is worth especial mention, that in the branches of industrial enterprise thereabout located, the women have insisted on their rights, and are ready to battle for them to the latter end of hogtime. The particular enterprise engaged in, is the skimming off from the surface of the water, of the grease and other offal that is passed into the creek from the pork-houses, by means of wooden sewers or troughs. When gathered, this grease is transferred to another locality, cleansed of its impurities by some rendering process, and then sold to the soap-factories. Now, among the parties engaged in this busi ness, each the manager and owner of a level, or claim, were Mrs. Elizabeth Hartmann and Mrs. Margaret Rolston. Mrs. Hartmann had obtained her claim by purchase or by deed of gift-that point not appearing very clearly-from Owen McCran, who it seems had become tired of the business. Under the lease turned over to her, she claimed absolute proprietorship from Johnson's line to the westerly side of the sewer or gutter connecting with the pork-house of Dun-can, Floyd & Co. Mrs. Rolston's claim joined her's, as you go up the creek. Mrs. Hartmann built her dam at the lower end of her claim, and was anticipating rich returns of the oleaging offal; and for a time her returns-gathered at the iam-were exceedingly rich, for she had the pick and choice, as well as the sum total from the sewer just inside her upper line. Baton a sudder the supplies grew less and less, and finally ceases altogether. She couldn't understand he r aso so she put off on a voyage of discovery, waice resulted in all the information she need d. M.s. Bolston had built her dam on the lower side of the sewer, and these cut off entirely the supply. Now was Mrs. Hartmann's wrath excited to the highest pitch. She railed at her enemy, and she shook her fist at her, but as they chanced to be on opposite sides of the grease-pont, and as she was too elscreet to plunge into the offal tide, she contented he self with threatening demonstrations and countless invectives, better understood along the shores of the Weser than those of Bear-

Mrs. Rolston, being of different nativity and speaking a different language, couldn't compre-hend what was said, but she took in the meaning of the signs, and her blood boiled up to fever heat; so het, indeed, that in order to cool it down, and at the same time demolish her antagonist, she determined to cross the oily pool and settle the trouble on the spot. No sooner thought than done, off came the shoes and stockings, and into the flood she sped, with her skimmer, or ladle, in her teeth. On she went, and though the greasy pool was nearly waist deep, she landed on the other side with dry clothing. America. Poising her battle-skimmer, she prepared onslaught, with flashing eyes and breath. But Mrs. Hartmann, believing turned to her own territory. By-and-by came Mrs. Hartman, re-enforced by Mr. Owen McCrap and his wife and their son James. McCran began the on-laught by threatening to go over and flict corporeal punishment upon the doughly Mrs. R. if she did not remove her dam to the upper line of the sewer, for she bad trespassed on the territory he had sold or given to Mrs. Hartmann.

How much longer a wordy war was carried on. is not known. By consent the battle-field was changed, and Justice Doane's office was the next Here the matter assumed a more serious phase, and after hearing numerous witnesses-for the terrible struggle was not without witnesses-the court held Mrs. Rolston in $100 fo three months for her Amazonian efforts to demol-ish her enemy, and Mr. McCran in the same penalty for his courageous threats across the greasy waters. And so ended this terrible affair.

The Swearing and Counter-swearing in a Hog Case. The readers of the Courier-Journal will re ember the mention made in these columns few days since of the arrest of two negroes named Live Logan and Bob Ewing, for stealing a hog from Wm. Still, who lives about three miles from the city. The negroes were brought before the City Court the other day, and, after a hearing, discharged, a negro named Shaw not swearing as he was expected to do. Immediately upon the discharge of the parties Shaw was arrested for perjury. His case came up yesterday morning, and he was required to give bond to an-

The whole matter, as it can be gleaned from the statements of the witnesses, is evidently a pretty good illustration of the counter-swearing by which the innocent are often made to suffer by which the innocent are often made to suffer and the guilty set free. The parties live in Christmas' woods, a place which seems to be a sort of negr) settlement, and where several serious affrays and a few murders have occurred. The hog in question was stolen on last Sunday night. Geo. Keller, a negro, and one of the principal witnesses, states that Shaw came to his house about 8 o'clock that night and took a seat to stay till bed-time. Keller then told him to go over to a neighbor's and

Your readers are all aware that Capt, Glover devotes his magnificent hail, on Tuesday night, to the benefit of the orphans of our city, purposing that the hearts of these little innocents too shall be gladdened by the approaching Christmas festivities. The benevolent conception is worthy of that executes gentlemen, and right worthly are our citizens reputiemen, and the sheat characters with our will contain the latter of them no doubt will contain and the latter worthly and until there is no tonger any sitting room or standing room to be found in the hail. The crowd is certain to be immense, and the skaters will be out in force to enchant the spectators with such visions of beauty and or grace as poet hardly ever felgned and painter never brought forth. The rink never disappoints anyone. Picture it in as glowing colors as you will, stretch your fancy to the very utmost, and you will not exceed the giorious reality. The involuntary exclamation of all who see it for the first time is, "how beautiful! how lovely!" But, beautiful as the spectacle beretofore has been, it never rose to such a hight of loveliness as it will exhibit Tuesday night, calling up in the mind and associating with it, as it will, that other scene when, on Christmas eye, the orphaned bulgeones will grafter around Christmas-trees, or sit down, pext day, to samrtuons Christmas-trees, or it down, pext day, to samrtuons Christmas-trees, or sit down, pext day, to samrtuons Christmas dinners. The poet assuredly had never seen ladies skating. If he had written in Louisville it would not have been on horseback, but upon skates, that he would have represented this "flower of all the West and all the world." We shall see at the rink on Tuesday evening such beauty as he wrote of, and the results will kindle smiles upon the laces of all the orphans in Louisville.

Thomas Pollock and Arabella Martin, Late of Pittsburg.

[From the Pittsburg Dispatch.] Our readers will perceive in another colum of the Dispatch an advertisement announcing the elopement of two mutes from Alleghamy City named respectively Thos. Pollock and Arabella Martin. The particulars of this rather strange love affair, if such it can be called, have been related to us as follows by the father of the girl, who is now endeavoring to gain some clue of her whereabouts: Less than a fortnight since, Pollock called for the first time at Mr. Martin's residence, on Western avenue, representing that he was traveling agent for a commercial establishment in Detroit, and that he was desirous of selling certain goods by sample. THE SUBLIME TO THE RIDICULOUS.

After a learned topographical argument to show that Louisville is the center toward which all creation converges, the Courier and the subject of its vivid imagination as follows:

We shall see Broadway a down-town avenue, and Cedar Hill and its adjacent commons, as far as the House of Refuge, crowded with palaces equal to those which grace a dozen of the finest streets in the world, and already distinguish Louisville as a city of palaces. We shall count our population by hundreds of thousands, and our money in stacks of millions, and the religence. money in stacks of millions, and the railroads which go from us to the South will embrace iir lines to every southerly point of the comwell, well! if such is the decree of Fate, why be so excited about the trifle of the right of way for a railroad? The Courier-Journal completes the picture f the future greatness of that interesting

"Ten years hence the sketch with which we began this article will be realized. Cincinnat will be to Louisville what St. Paul is to St. Louis, a flourishing up-river tributary. St. Louis, on the Mississippi, and Louisville, on the Ohio, are the destined centers. It is time we begin to clear away the rubbish and make room for the coming flood of population, commerce and manufactures."

Again we ask "in the name of all the gods Again we ask "in the name of all the gods at once," why be so terribly agitated about the mere right of way for a railway South from this "flourishing up-river tributary?"

We fear that, as far as the argument is concerned, the "vaultung ambition" of the Courter-Journate "overleaps itself." Were a picture of Louisville to be projected from the distress which the proposed Cimennati Southerr railroad occasions the Courier-Journal, it would be very different from that above given.

mineral and comprecial resources of Tennessee, and to benefit the business of Chattanooga, which is simply a suburb of Atlanta. To grant this right of way is merely to give to Cheinnati the right of eminent domain through our State with a railroad over which we have no control. Two powerful rival commercial communities in two States is commercial communities, in two States im-mediately north of us, that have never con-sidered our trade worth having, are at this sidered our trade worth having, are at this moment arranging preliminaries to fight the battle of commercial supremacy over the dead commerce of Tennessee. The fancied prize for which this lively competition is excited, is the cotton of Georgia, Alabama, South Carelina and the Gulf trade. Cincinnati plays the game of the mischievous but knowing monkey, expecting to make the Tennessee Legislature the cat'spaw to pull the Southern chestauts out of the fire. If consummated, the scheme of this "ring" strikes a fatal blow to our entire system, and forces the sale, for debt, of two of our most important lines, and murders another in its infancy.

e report of Gen. G. H. Thomas on Alaska very cheerful reading when it is remembered what that icy whim of Mr. Seward's cost us. It is the most stupendous humbug in the way of acquired territory ever invested in by our government. Gen. Thomas' report | many. is very full. The discontent of the Indians, the wretched condition of the natives, the small prospect of its ever being settled, owing to the bleakness and coldness of the climate, and a dozen other good reasons, are given officially. The Russians outwitted us in this matter. Alaska is not really worth a thousand dollars to us. Gen. Thomas should have been sent to inspect Alaska before the people's money was wasted on it, and thus the millions paid for it might have been saved. As it is we could not give it away to a beggar for a Christmas gift. III.

The mother is exceedingly high-church in her views, and while she was living in Geneva, during the educa-tion of her son for the ministry, was a constant attendant at morning and evening services, and went through the services with such high-church ceremony that she attracted the attention of the villagers and the whole congregation, and a clergyman declared that the way in which she said "amen" was particularly obnoxious, as she did not say it as others did, but always as if it were written nd pronounced "R-R-men." quest is to add a single remark. I am gratified that the honorable and able Senator from Illinois has taken up this subject. I do not know any subject that in my judgment needs and requires more urgently a proper consid-eration and action of Congress than this subject of appointments to office.

The honorable Senator has stated with great force and truth the particular cases that are embodied in his remarks; but there is another class of cases which did not come within the purview of bis remarks at all. For example, the State of Kentucky has no friend of this dministration in either House of Congress. How does the honorable Senator propose to secure to the government of the country the best nominations to offices whose duties are to be performed in that State?

REVENUE LAWS.

The Senate resolution appointing a committhe Senate resolution appointing a commit-tee to report a bill reducing into one the rev-came laws of the State was this morning adopted by the House. The propriety of this measure is so obvious that there can be no question of its adoption. STANDING COMMITTEES OF THE HOUSE.

Speaker Bunch expected to be able to an speaker bunch expected to be able to an hounce the Standing Committees of the House to-day, but this morning stated that the announcement would be necessarily postponed until Monday. It is naturally Judge Bunch's wish so to constitute the several committees as to expedite legislation, and as far as practicable to give general satisfaction.

Hotels. LIABILITIES OF RAILROAD COMPANIES.

A bill was enacted by the last General As-A fill was enacted by the last General Assembly of Kentucky, making railroad companies responsible for stock killed along the line of their respective roads. To-day a message was received from His Excellency announcing his approval of the bill. Why his approval was so long withheld your correspondent is not advised. The law is an important one alike to the railroad companies, and those living along the line of the roads.

I learn that a law looking to the protection of the people of Kentucky against the swindles of bogus insurance companies has been drafted, and will be presented at an early day. The need of such legislation has long

THE SENATORIAL CONTEST. Hon. John S. Golladay, it is authoritatively Hon. John S. Golladay, it is authoritatively announced this morning, has retired from the Senatorial contest. I have it from Mr. G. himself that such is the case. This leaves Wintersmith, McCreery and Stevenson alone in the field. As Mr. Golladay is understood to retire in Wintersmith's favor, that gentieman's prospects are advanced in proportion.

A FORMIDABLE DIFFICULTY.

Within the last twenty-four hours there has been considerable mooting of the point as to whether Stevenson, in case of election to the Senate, could take the oath of office. That oath is exceedingly stringent, requiring the applicant for position to swear, not only that he has never held commission or office in the Confederacy, but that he has not evan in any wise given aid or encouragement to the rebellion. Now, it is currently reported that the very able gentleman who now occupies the Executive chair did not only make speeches inciting Kentuckians to go into the Southern army, but that he at one time declared that he held a colonel's commission, and spent some time in Richmond during the days of the rebellion. It is contended that A FORMIDABLE DIFFICULTY. and spent some time in Richmond during the days of the rebellion. It is contended that such being the case, though he never actually went into the service, Kentucky woull, in the event of electing him, be without a Senator, inasmuch as he could not take the ironclad oath. If, say his opponents, his disabilities had been removed, the matter would be altogether different, as, in that case, the oath would be prospective and not retrospective in its character.

Removing Bank Treasures—A Faith-ful Dog.

A Hartford paper has the following incidents of a fire at Meriden, Connecticut:
The First National Bank was in great danger, and it was thought best to remove all the money and papers to the vault of the Home National Bank. The removal was effected un-der the direction of the Chief-of-Police Beach, the notes and scrip being carried out in a heaped up basket. A roll of notes amounting in all to $300, rolled off the top of the basket. Somebody shouted "you've dropped some-thing!" and it was picked up by the police and pitched into the heap. The police had their staves ready to knock down any intruder who should attempt to grab. They removed about half a million of property in notes, bonds and deeds, and not a single cent was lost in the operation.

NO HOPE FOR GEOPGIA WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Several conservative Georgians of prominence have arrived here, for the purpose of counteraciting, if possible, the measures urged on Congress by Gov Bullock regarding the State. But they find that their mission is quite fraitless. The Senate Judiciary Committee has already decided that it will report a bill exacting of rights, civil and political, before the law without regard to color; and in obtaining the views of leading Republicats in both Houses, they find that the cictura of the message in this particular is to be rigorously carrie tout.

These gentlemen was that Growing and provision for equal metals and provision for equal rights, civil and political, before the law without the title of W. E. H. COST OF THE WAR. The report of Commissioner Wells, to be submitted to Congress in a few days, places Stringent Weasures for Ireland the cost of the war, down to June 30, 1869, at -- The Gem of the Sec over $4,171,914,498. This vast amount includes the war expenses and expenses growing out of the war. To this he adds estimate losses, and State, county, and town expenses, and foots the whole at the enormous amount of nine thousand millions of dollars.

THE CAPITAL REMOVER.

Reaves, the capital mover, returned to St. Louis last night, and will come back after the holidays to push the project. He says if the people of St. Louis want the capital they must raise some money to get a bill through Congress. As yet no bill has been introduced on the subject, though two or three members have them already prepared.

THE BINANCIAL SITUATION. WASKINGTON, Dec. 11 .- The first movement of the session to obtain a test vote on the financial situation was made in the House today, and, while a good many members were absent and the two votes taken were in some respects contradictory of each other, the result reached seems to be against any further increase of the volume of the currency. It was Garfield objected, and moved to substitute the Committee on Banking and Currency, pending which Mr. Scofield, of Penn sylvania, moved to lay the bill on the table, and stated that those who voted against inflation would vote for the motion. mosity, bitterness, or reorimination. I certainly hope we may be restored before the week ends without a single dissenting vote; that before the Christmas holidays, by one single act of amnesty, the disabilities of every citizen of this Commonwealth may be removed. The policy of selecting here and there individuals for relief, not because of their superior claims, but rather on account of the friends they have at court or the diligence with which they move their suit, is plainly unwise and manifestly unjust. It tends largely to aggravate the irriunjust. It tends largely to aggravate the irri-tation already existing. The 200 men whose disabilities are in this way remayed are not thereby rendered any more friends to the Government than they were before, while all others not relieved find in this last act of unjust Congressional discrimination a new wause of more substantial complaint, dislike cause of more substantial complaint, dislike and bitterness.
